A Message From Our Board of Directors

"A Charter school in Colorado is a tuition-free public school that is open to all students. Charter schools are extremely important in Colorado as they not only give students more choices that better suit them, but they also give them an excellent education. Charter school autonomy allows for more flexibility in curriculum, and the results speak for themselves. The latest report lists seven of the top ten Colorado high schools as charter schools. Only one of the top ten is a traditional public school. More parents are choosing to send their children to charter schools with Colorado growing to about 15% of all students attending charter schools."

Parking at the Propp building to the east

We received a call from Propp Management before winter break regarding Addenbrooke students who get dropped off/picked up in their parking lot. If you do not have business in that building, please do not use their parking lot. Please help us maintain good relations with our neighbors.

Jekyll & Hyde: This caution came from Colorado Ballet.

Permission slips are coming home Tuesday and are due Jan. 29

There is some serious and mature subject matter in this ballet. Because of this, we strongly recommend that all in attendance be at least 13 years old. The production is based more closely on the novella by Robert Louis Stevenson from 1886 (which our students read in middle school) than what people may have seen on TV or in movies. Attached is the detailed synopsis of this production and below is a description of what themes you and your students can expect to see represented on stage:

- Mental illness depicted in the historical context of when the novella was written (1886) that no longer align with modern practices and beliefs
- Dark and uncomfortable scenes
- Dancers (male and female) acting as prostitutes
- Revealing clothing/costumes
- Violence (two murders, one via assault, one via implied strangulation, as well as the assault of a minor)

Additionally, here are two videos from Kansas City Ballet that depict some of the above:
