

THE MUSTANG POST

11/15/24

Dear Families,

We are finishing up our second MCR of the year. This prompt focuses on a science topic. Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz exchanged letters with Samuel Clarke, who was writing on behalf of Isaac Newton. One of the main topics of discussion was the nature of space. Newton believed space to be absolute, while Leibniz believed it to be relative. Our reading comes from the third exchange between the two men. Later, Einstein would develop his theory of relativity, which aligned with Leibniz's understanding. The letters are a fascinating read. The nature of space impacts our daily lives in some amazing ways, especially in communication technologies like phones, watches, and GPS. You can find them here. This is a difficult prompt, and we've given the students a few extra days to work on it. So far, they are working hard and beginning to grasp the concepts.
