

THE MUSTANG POST

November 04, 2022

Dear Parents,

Mustang Chorale just returned from Metro State University, having participated in MSU's choral festival this morning. We could not be prouder of their performance. One of the faculty judges commented to Ms. Weiss that they were the best choir he heard all morning. In my opinion, their third piece, From Where I Stood by Joshua Shank, was the most technical piece of the morning.

This afternoon we had a recognition of our cross country team and girls' volleyball team who are going to regionals tomorrow. Next week we have a number of upperclassmen chaperones going to Outdoor Lab with the sixth grade class.

Addenbrooke faculty and staff believe we have the best students in Jeffco, and we strive to do our best for your family. Please be understanding of this when teachers need to correct inappropriate behavior and challenge faulty thinking and harmful habits. We want the best for all of them and their futures.

Enjoy your weekend. Ten school days until Thanksgiving break! Where does the time go?

Respectfully,
Cindy Lamgo

Teacher Spotlight:

Denny Seebeck

US History, US Government, Algebra II, Statistics

Mr. Seebeck is a native of Iowa but moved to Colorado in 1985. He is married and has several fur babies: a foxhound named Baxter, a mini Manchester named Lenny, two cats, Butters and Harriet, then Piqua and Shyla, two guinea pigs. His hobbies are gardening and plaster craft painting of villages. His gardening tip for Colorado gardeners is do not plant anything until after Mother's Day and even that rule seems to be changing.

Mr. Seebeck holds several degrees: a Bachelor's degree in Secondary Education and another in Bible from Maranatha Baptist University, two Associates degrees from Red Rocks Community College, one in accounting and one in history and mathematics; and he is currently working on a Master's Degree in Education from Grand Canyon University. He taught for 14 years at Beth Eden Baptist School, spent several years as an accountant, and came to Addenbrooke last year. He is becoming famous for his creative Halloween costumes.
