A NOTE FROM THE PRINCIPAL

Today's Halloween festivities were a great success. The costume parade is a showstopper, and the real stars are our Middle School students making each participant feel special with cheers, shoutouts and high fives. We love how well attended our events are and today's parade and party was no exception. Parents were lined up out the door supplying us with identification and volunteer agreements. A pretty long line I might add. We stand by keeping our students safe and are so thankful for all of our parents who are helping us do this. You all are amazing and we appreciate your patience.

We have moved our Annual Pumpkin Drop to Monday, November 4th. This along with the silly string your teacher will be held outside on the playground starting at 2:00.

We are hoping to get some new pictures to add to our Veterans Day wall of heroes. If you have a family member that is a veteran, we want a picture of them along with their rank and what their job was or where they were possibly deployed. Also share what students they are related to. We would like these pictures emailed by November 7th sent to mleyva@addenbrooke.org.

Volunteers are still needed for the November 13th Art Show. Please go to the sign up genius and consider volunteering an hour or more of your time. This is always such a fun event for our students.

Art to Remember packets have been sent home to our students. The cutoff for orders being sent to the school is November 8th. These Art orders make great gifts for the holidays. <https://arttoremember.com/school/eqa6a>

Next week will also be our Scholastic Book Fair so watch for information coming home about this. We haven't done a book fair like this since the second year of Addenbrooke. We hope it will be a success.

Tomorrow there will be no school as the teachers have a professional development day. We also have traditionally called this Candy Coma Day and know that the students will need to rest after trick-or-treating.

DADS' BOOK CLUB

Middle School Tardy Policy

Students who accumulate 10 tardies will face an afterschool detention. We will keep monitoring tardies, and if a student adds 5 or more within a 2-week period, they will receive an additional afterschool detention. Parents will be notified via email regarding the detention and the date it is scheduled to be served.
